Ege University organizes educational programs for local and national communities focused on the sustainable management of agricultural land. These programs are offered free of charge.

Description: The sustainable management of land is essential for the development of rural areas and the continuity of food supply. Projects, organized activities, and educational programs developed for these purposes are of great importance. Ege University carries out such initiatives with the participation of its faculty, staff, and students. Some of the training programs are conducted asynchronously and through distance learning, aiming to reach a wider audience.
